UPDATE

Indexed lease agreement a blessing in inflationary times; BUY

What's it all about?

FCR Immobilien AG ("FCR") announced positive news yesterday, highlighting the success of its business model of focusing on specialist retail properties in established secondary locations in Germany. The vacancy rate across the portfolio was further reduced to 6.8% in 2022. FCR also announced that it has repaid its EUR 25 million 5-year bond as scheduled, resulting in a significant reduction in interest payments and increasing FCR's future funds from operations (FFO). In addition, FCR can rely on indexed leases, which further adds to the resilience of FCR's FFO generation going forward. As a result, we believe FCR is well positioned to deliver FFO growth again in 2023, which is why we reiterate our BUY rating with an unchanged PT of EUR 23.50.

Indexed lease agreement a blessing in inflationary times

Positive news flow. FCR Immobilien AG ("FCR") announced some positive news yesterday. In our view, this once again highlights the beauty of FCR's business model of focusing on specialist retail properties in established secondary locations in Germany, which makes FCR a lucrative investment with resilient rental income for anti-cyclical investors:

Vacancy rate further improved. In 2022, FCR managed to further reduce the vacancy rate of its property portfolio. During the year, the vacancy rate of the entire portfolio was further reduced and stood at 6.8% at the end of 2022, compared to 7.1% in 2021. In fact, FCR has managed to reduce its vacancy rate by as much as 8 pps over the last five years, highlighting the ongoing success of its asset management, but also the quality of FCR's property locations and access to a large pool of potential anchor tenants. The latter is particularly important for securing follow-on leases. In addition, FCR uses a proprietary software solution to match vacancies with potential tenants.

Scheduled repayment of its EUR 25m bond. FCR also announced that it has repaid its EUR 25m 5-year bond as scheduled. The redemption of the 6% coupon bond will result in a significant reduction in interest payments and therefore increase FCR's future funds from operations (FFO) by approximately EUR 1.1m (net interest savings). This is the third bond (approximately EUR 10m/ EUR 15m and EUR 25m) that FCR has repaid on schedule, all of which have contributed to the company's impeccable track record in the otherwise often beaten down German Mittelstandsanleihe market.

Indexed rental agreements a blessing. Finally, FCR mentioned that most of its leases are indexed leases. In fact, we believe that around 2/3 (eAR) of all leases are automatically adjusted upwards as inflation rises. For FCR, this creates resilient FFOs as - according to FCR - the higher rental income, together with lower vacancy rates and net interest savings are likely to outweigh the additional costs of generally rising interest rates.

Conclusion: Unlike, for example, residential real estate companies where indexed leases are the exception, FCR can rely on the cushioning effect of indexed leases. Combined with its active asset management approach, we believe FCR is well positioned to deliver FFO growth again in 2023. We therefore reiterate our BUY rating, with the PT unchanged at EUR 23.50.

4. Information Concerning the Methods of Valuation/Update The determination of the fair value per share, i.e. the price target, and the resultant rating is done on the basis of the adjusted free cash flow (adj. FCF) method and on the basis of the discounted cash flow – DCF model. Furthermore, a peer group comparison is made. The adj. FCF method is based on the assumption that investors purchase assets only at a price (enterprise value) at which the operating cash flow return after taxes on this investment exceeds their opportunity costs in the form of a hurdle rate. The operating cash flow is calculated as EBITDA less maintenance capex and taxes. Within the framework of the DCF approach, the future free cash flows are calculated initially on the basis of a fictitious capital structure of 100% equity, i.e. interest and repayments on debt capital are not factored in initially. The adjustment towards the actual capital structure is done by discounting the calculated free cash flows with the weighted average cost of capital (WACC), which takes into account both the cost of equity capital and the cost of debt. After discounting, the calculated total enterprise value is reduced by the interest-bearing debt capital in order to arrive at the equity value. Detailed information on the valuation principles and methods used and the underlying assumptions can be found at <https://www.alsterresearch.com>.

SRH AlsterResearch AG uses the following three-step rating system for the analyzed companies:

- Speculative (Spec.) BUY: Sustainable upside potential of more than 25% within 12 months, above average risk
- BUY: Sustainable upside potential of more than 10% within 12 months
- SELL: Sustainable downside potential of more than 10% within 12 months.
- HOLD: Upside/downside potential is limited. No immediate catalyst visible.

NB: The ratings of SRH AlsterResearch AG are not based on a performance that is expected to be "relative" to the market.

6. Risk information

- Stock exchange investments and investments in companies (shares) are always speculative and involve the risk of total loss.
- This is particularly true in respect of investments in companies which are not established and/or small and have no established business or corporate assets.
- Share prices may fluctuate significantly. This is particularly true for shares with low liquidity (market breadth). Even small orders can have a significant impact on the share price.
- In the case of shares in narrow markets, it may also happen that there is no or very little actual trading there and that published prices are not based on actual trading but have only been provided by a stockbroker.
- In such markets a shareholder cannot expect to find a buyer for his shares at all and/or at reasonable prices. In such narrow markets there is a very high possibility of manipulating prices and in such markets there are often considerable price fluctuations.
- An investment in shares with low liquidity and low market capitalization is therefore highly speculative and represents a very high risk.
- There is no regulated market for unlisted shares and securities and a sale is not possible or only possible on an individual basis.
